To whom this may concern:

During my volunteer time at my daughter Delaney's spring play this past May @ Oxford Center School, I had the pleasure to meet Mrs. Campbell. She had a wonderful disposition and great repour with the children. She had great patience and remained very calm throughout the many days of rehearsals. She really spent time with the children teaching them about what their character's roles were really all about. This particular play was about the 1960's and the Vietnam War. Although it was funny at times there were parts that were sad. She helped the actors learn the difference in how to let their emotions show on stage by getting them to compare it to an emotion they may have experienced in their own real lives. I feel she is very gifted within this area of expertise and I would highly recommend her for a coaching position at any level. It's obvious she loves what she does and gives 110%. To be there day in and day out without even having her own child in the play is a real statement. I truly believe she would help make any play a success.

Sincerely,
